Dr. Sterling Gives Talk On Current Russian Situation
Soviet Problem Topic At Student Assembly In Culbertson Hall Today

This meeting at 11:00 in Culbertson Hall Dr. J. E. Wallace Sterling gave an excellent talk on "Russian Riddle" giving to many of us a much clearer picture of the Russian situation.

Dr. Sterling is surrounded with mystery, many are fun. This astute two continents, encompassing one-sixth of the land surface of the globe, with a population of 100 millions increasing in 1929 at a rate of 2% a year. And despite the fact that he has made in the study of her history she remains in large measure unknown.

"All riddles are touched with mystery. Many are fun. This one seems ominous. It is not too much to say, I think, that the highest degree of current American interest in Russian affairs is from fear: fear of war and fear of the extension of the Soviet system.

Vanity Night Friday

World Citizenship

Goal Of Students

The meeting of the local "we're for world-government" last Wednesday was successful in that it attained a new height in membership. A former Oxford student, who has been active with the American Federation of Scientists, joined the group and gave a number of interesting suggestions as to methods for working towards the establishment of world government.

The spirit of the Oxford group is being duplicated in the local branch of the American Political Association. In addition, the student Federalists have planned a longer campaign in their efforts to bring the attention of the students to the need for a world government, and how students may actively share in the formation of such a government.

Tech Vs Poets
Tomorrow 8 PM
Whittier Favored
In Second Big Game

There should be very little rhyme in Portland tomorrow night if Coach Anderson's Owl crew can live up to last week's wonder-ful start. Emerging with only a few bumps and scratches, the Beavers should be at full strength for the Whittier tilt, which promises some lively action.

Port Record
So far, the Poets have won only one game defeating Portland 18-4, while losing to Pepperdine 13-6, San Diego State 35-7, and to Cal Poly 15-6. As the only standard of comparison, the best that Cal Poly could do with Owl was to hold the Tigers to a 7-7 tie. The entire team should turn up at the far base-ment, but there is a doubt as to how much of their strength can live up to last week's mention.

The next game will be in low-Fleming on Thursday, Nov. 7, between 4 and 6 p.m. After several informal meeting-decisions, definite steps have been taken to obtain an instructor and adequate space for classes. All interested should attend meeting or see Yates Hickey in Room 26, Fleming.

Sports Here 'n There

Coach Anderson, Methringer, and the entire football squad deserve a big vote of thanks for the fine game. Tech played last Friday night. Beyond the satisfaction which it gave everyone in beating out a strong rival, Tech played a lot of football inside the lines, opened new prestige to Tech sports and gave proof of a few things to come in our athletic pride. "We played our game with the band and the student body was wonderful, and appreciated by the fellows on the team. Keep it up!"

Whittier Tomorrow

Whittier may well prove to be the toughest opposition that we will meet in our league this year. Outstanding men for the Poets in their game with Pomona were Captain "Buck" Jarman, fullback, and left half "Steve" Pike, a 130 lb. bracket. After their loss to Cal Poly last week, the men from Whittier will be out for blood.

Fencing Club To Be Formed At Tech

Sponsored by Col. Goldsoror, Tiffany, a fencing club is being formed at Tech for both graduate and undergraduate students. The next meeting will be in low-Fleming on Thursday, Nov. 7, between 4 and 6 p.m. After several informal meet-ings, definite steps have been taken to obtain an instructor and adequate space for classes. All interested should attend meeting or see Yates Hickey in Room 26, Fleming.

"Standards Needed"—Flannery To YMCA Peace Forum

Speaking to a large audience, Mr. Harry Flannery, C.B.E. cor-respondent, radio commentator and author of the best seller "Assignment to Berlin" delivered a talk on "Eye of the Cocked World" at last Monday evening's Caltech Y.M.C.A. Forum.

Facts, Not Prejudice

"Less prejudices and more facts would help to clear the atmospheres of the large amounts of suspicion and fighting now going on, both domestically and internationally."

Speaking from experience, Mr. Flannery declared that in order to solve the problem of communists, and the problem of the Chinese as well, the United Nations should be strengthened. Flannery argued that the United States, as a major economic power, has a responsibility to help the United Nations defend itself.

It is clear that the UN, if it is to function as an effective international organization, needs more powerful countries to support it. The United States, with its vast economic resources, should take a leading role in this effort.

In conclusion, Mr. Flannery urged the United States to take a more active role in the United Nations, and to work towards a world where peace and cooperation can flourish.

MUSICAL BAZEDEKER

Mickey Mouse in Town

Jazz in Los Angeles again hit its stride last week with several new jazz rivals remaining in the city, and the highly successful the excellent Eddie Beas- trito and Irrie Anderson at Biltmore, probably the very JAZZCAJA best of all the current shows. Eddie was in rare form, and JAZZCAJA the music was very swinging. The crowd was a very happy one, and the musicians were in top form. The band was composed of the following:

Eddie Beas-smooth, swinging drift on to the lure of sex.

In line with recent events the Chinese government is now deciding to cut back on its foreign aid. This will not only affect the Chinese but also any countries that have relied on Chinese aid in the past.

DECEMBER 12, 1946

Musical Baedecker

"Allah, all Ball Bell Ball, the Greatest of all Time. Look out! This is Blackie talking to ya." Amid such weird locuta- tion the greatest of all time with "Oxy." Tech spirit was off to a flying start last night.

Oxy Raid

We nominate Tom Bix for the most outstanding Raiders of the year. Those of you who had the privilege of falling overboard to the lure of sex. Victims of the insidious plot were some rather innocent girls seeking the non-existent dancing class on the night of the Pajaramino. They were led straight to the arms of Oxy men who were cordially invited to spend the night on their campus.

As for Stephen Tuchman, the Oxy student who signed up for the air show last week, he plans to present his case to the high-quality technical audience at the next Caltech debate.

Campus Brews

The biggest musical tragedy covered by the Caltech music critic this year was “Wizard of Oz.” The band situation has been so bad that the music critic has decided to stop writing about it.

Notionally, the band is composed of four oboes, two clarinets, one bassoon, one trumpet, one trombone, and one piano. However, the only instrument that can be heard is the piano, and even then it is not heard very well.

The band manager, who is a senior, has been trying to contact jazz talent in Los Angeles in an effort to acquire better musical material. He has been successful in his efforts, and now the band is auditioning for a new member.

Mr. Flannery stated that it would be impossible to send an expedition to explore the Amazon without the cooperation of Brazil. He believes that the United States could be ready to extend its influence in South America only if the Brazilian government agrees to cooperate.

Mr. Flannery also discussed the situation in Europe. He believes that it is important for the United States to continue to support the United Nations and to work towards a world where peace and cooperation can flourish.

In conclusion, Mr. Flannery urged the United States to take a more active role in the United Nations, and to work towards a world where peace and cooperation can flourish.
