Caltech to celebrate King's legacy

BY AUTUMN LECKREN

Next Monday, January 19, Caltech will host two events in celebration of Martin Luther King Day. Students, staff, and faculty are encouraged to attend these events.

The first event, at 12:15 in Ramo Auditorium, features keynote speaker Tommy Hawkins, the Vice President for Communications of the LA Dodgers. He will be speaking on “Martin Luther King: Star of an American Revolution.” The Pasadena City College Gospel Choir will also perform at the event.

The second event, at 6:30 p.m. in Ramo Auditorium, will be a 90 minute musical performance directed by Betty Griffin Keller. The Pasadena City College Gospel Choir, the New Macedonian Choir, and other area church choirs will be performing.

―When class meetings conflict with this event, faculty encourage students to attend these special campus programs and to make every effort to accommodate all those who wish to attend. Staff supervisors are expected to make similar efforts to accommodate any Caltech employee wishing to attend," said Caltech President David Baltimore in a memo to Caltech students, faculty, and staff.

Tytell wins SURF speaking competition

BY ERK DILL

“One of the most important things in science is being able to communicate science to the layman," David Tytell, winner of the annual Doris S. Perpall SURF-speaking competition, is certainly accomplished in making technically daunting topics accessible. Last year, giving his first SURF talk, he made it to the semifinals and this year’s speech on Martian impact craters garnered him the $500 first prize in the finals on Sunday.

Tytell’s SURF involved studying elliptical meteorite impact craters on Mars with Professors Stan Love and Bill Botke. Elliptical craters result from shallow angle impacts and are more elongated than typical round craters. Based on current theories, there were too many of these craters observed on the Martian surface. Tytell determined that the original data sets were inaccurate and revealed them based on Viking photographs. He then developed a theory which evaluated Mars as having a rocky surface, rather than sand-like surface as has been suggested by prior theories. This new theory agreed with both computer models and the Viking observations.

Dave credits great support from faculty, friends and family, as well as an enjoyable project, with his SURF success. "It was a fun topic that people were interested in." In addition to his advisor, Professor Andy Ingersoll helped polish the final presentation, and Dave’s family and fellow Moles turned out in force for Tuesday’s finals in Beckman Institute. Finally, solid oration combined with bold photography and a unique Mars globe prop to make it easy for people to be interested and achieve Tytell’s goal of communication and understanding.

The SURF saga does not end here. Tytell’s research will appear in Icarus, a journal of planetary science, and he and the other finalists have the option to attend the National Undergraduate Research Conference in April.

Big T saved from near disaster

Disk to be handed over to publisher this morning

Delayed by editorial mismanagement, the Big T was rescued through the superhuman effort of a dedicated member of the publications staff. After nearly non-stop work over winter break, resulting in a series of halting and carpal tunnel syndrome, the 1997 Caltech yearbook will be handed over to the publisher at 10:15 A.M. Friday morning. Delayed for three months, all of the pages have finally been completed and are saved to disk.

Despite the delay, a quality book to return from the publisher. If you’re interested in seeing the final product now, printouts can be viewed in the Student Activities Center, in the halls near the Coffeehouse.

Wellness Week is next week

Events promise fun, food and information

BY DEBORAH SOLTHERLAND

An important part of Wellness Week is Depression Screening Day, facilitated by Dr. Jon Pedersen and Dr. Armeez Elliott of the Student Counseling Center. They will discuss the causes and treatment of depression in a lecture style format. Afterward, interested students may take a short screening test to assess their level of depression. Counseling Center staff will then hand out the interpretation.

Other educational programs cover the topics of traditional Oriental medicine, holistic approaches to weight management, and the American Red Cross Bone Marrow Donor program, which will explain how to register as a bone marrow donor. There is an especially strong need for people of color to register as donors.

The more purely social and fun events are Starpower, the see WELLNESS WEEK ON PAGE 2
The Smartest Stupid People in the World

Now, beat the pot issue completely into the ground and I think people are missing the point about this recent incident. The presence of the pot does not threaten anyone, the presence of the drugs is only unсlev-e people does. Who are these unсlev-e people? In general it is everyone, at some point in their stay at Caltech. For more (the fortunate ones) the act or acts of complete stupidity are relatively harmless and personal. A mild electric shock, an acid burn, or a good bump on the head. I think it is fair to say that most Caltech students have hurt themselves, damaged something, or wasted a lot of their own money at some point in their career due to a combination of over-confidence and a lack of common sense. There is no mechanism required for this to occur and it will keep occurring. The pot does not encourage or isn’t required for this to happen. Not too long ago someone poured an accelerant on the car skirt and then lit it. To make matters worse they tried to use water to put out the alcho­hol fire. No one had a fire ex­tinguisher ready and the stant was on fire, and inside, in the cur­tains. Needless to say they were badly burned. It is awe inspir­ing that someone admitted to his institute could do something so foolish, but they did and I’m sure someone else will be just as clever in the not too distant future. Burning shirts or keep­ing all accelerator on the cam­pus under surveillance won’t help. Someone will find a new original way to hurt themselves and it’s a certain but no one will try that stunt again anyway.

Now, someone got hurt be­cause a group of people did something rather stupid. They fussed up, perhaps the discipline was handled poorly, but in the end the people responsible had to pay for their mistake. Whether it was appropriate I am not going to address. What disturbs me is the subsequent over­reaction and punishment of these not involved. There are a number of people in Ricketts that I believe enjoy a controlled bonfire in the pot and are re­sponsible enough not to perform fireballs or let it get too big. Why are they being punished? It is akin to imprisoning a drunk driver and then taking everybody else’s car away too.

The pot is the safest way to have an outdoor fire on campus. Is it illegal? Probably by some definitions it is. However, the last time I had a bonfire in a fire ring at Huntington Beach I don’t recall notifying the city, filling out permits or any such nonsense. People head up to the San Gabriels all the time and have large fires in fire rings under a dry forest canopy right next to highly flammable stuff on the ground. Thus, while stupid, is legal too. Clearly a line is drawn somewhere and like most legal continuous it is probably pretty fuzzy. I am sure we can fit the pot in somewhere.

Ricketts House Pot Proposal: turn the page

by INDEPENDENT

After considerable research into the matter, we the members of Ricketts House have formulated a plan which we hope can forge a compromise with the administration and prevent the de­struction of the Fire Pot. From our discussions with Institutional administrators, namely Dr. West and Dr. Revel, it seems that the administration has three major (and valid) concerns about fire in Ricketts House:

1. The legality of the Fire Pot
2. Student safety
3. Potential legal liability for the Institute

To address the first concern, several members of the House have investigated the suggestion of transforming the Pot into a large barbecue grill. The city of Pasadena currently uses the 1994 edition of the Uniform Fire Code, and according to this document, barbecue pits or grills are legal as long as they are 10 feet away from any structure, made of concrete or other some noncombustible material, and have fire ex­tinguishers and other safety fea­tures nearby. Moreover, there are no size restrictions or other legal impediments to converting the Pot into a grill, as we learned when we called the fire de­partment and spoke with a knowledgeable representa­tive.

The current Ricketts Pot already fulfills these requirements, so it would take to make the Pot legal to add a metal grill over the top. Of course, one might argue that stu­dents could simply remove the grill as soon as all of this controversy blows over and ignore the promise to the fire legal. To address this concern, we propose a sys­tem by which the grill would be bolted to the Pot and only the President (or some other House of­ficer) would have the key. In issuing the ex­amination of student safety, the House’s re­sponse has been overwhelming: as a House, we unanimously agreed to participate in Institute-run fire safety training and have all incoming freshmen enroll in this fire safety program. This would not only ensure student safety, but the practice of having each year’s new House members participate in fire safety training would also help carry on the fire safety issue.

Wellness Week is sponsored by Human Resources and Student Affairs.

CLARIFICATION

The Ricketts members mentioned in the editors note in “All Around the Pot” were not aware of the specific fire incident mentioned by the Dean and believed him to be referring to a different incident in which there was no fire.
"Pot into a barbecue grill" was not invented a new issue about which the administration should be concerned, and there is already a barbecue in every student house. Therefore the Pot would pose Caltech no additional responsibility.

Another key to protecting the Institute from legal liability is supplying the administration to make it perfectly clear that pyrotechnics are not permitted on Caltech property.

Dr. West told us that if she felt a precedent was made along these lines when the administration banished six Ricketts House students from the House for performing a pyrotechnic event in the courtyard. In short, if this plan is followed, we see no reason why the Institute would have to worry about potential liability generated by a Fire Pot barbecue.

Dr. Revel's principal concern with this plan was that future students may ignore this agreement and the guidelines which it provides, he argues that ways have to be found to eliminate this fireball issue. The members of Ricketts House responded to this at a recent House meeting by drafting a document of stipulations regarding the use of the pot.

The exact text is as follows: "...it will be operated in accordance with Pasadena fire code. This means burning only wood or charcoal only beneath the grill, not using incendiary or explosive devices, and not throwing anything above it...

- Since any further misuse of the pot will presumably lead to its immediate removal, illegal use of the pot is understood to be an honor code violation, and new freshmen will be informed of this."

This agreement was signed by no less than fifty-seven members of Ricketts House, demonstrating that the House is serious about looking after itself and promises it tells the administration.

Essentially, we have given the administration our word that if we are allowed to keep our cherished Pot and the long-standing tradition of having small, safe fires as a social highlight of the House, then we will ensure that these guidelines to which we agree will be unanimously followed. We realize that if any single person breaks the pact we made with the Institute, not only will a precious House tradition be gone forever, but we would also be proving once and for all that the Honor Code simply does not work in situations like this and that students cannot be trusted to act as the adults they are. We can only hope that the administration will take us on our word and let us prove our integrity.

BAHRAIN, IRAQ—For the second time in two months, President Saddam Hussein has stopped investigations, looking for biological, chemical, and nuclear weapons, complaining that there are too many Americans and Britons, and on this occasion, that the leader of the group is a spy. The Security Council of the United Nations voted to admonish Iraq for blocking inspectors, but has not mentioned consequences should Iraq fail to comply.

JERUSALEM, ISRAEL—The Israeli Cabinet announced it would postpone further withdrawal from the West Bank until Palestinians satisfy a stringent list of demands. These include the release of Palestinian prisoners to Israel which Yasser Arafat is unlikely to accept. Negotiations will hopefully make some headway after the leaders of both countries visit Washington. D.C. later this month.

OCOSINGO, MEXICO—Army troops have been ordered to arrest 29 members of a police unit in the state of Chiapas who opened fire on Indian anti-Government protesters. Relations have been tense since the killing of 45 local Indians by pro-Government gun men last month.

FODOR'S, YUGOSLAVIA—Thousands of protesters clashed with riot police in Montenegro after a violent election removed the former President. The inauguration last week of Milo Djukanovic, a reformer, has sparked violence in the streets of the capital.

RIO DE JANEIRO, BRAZIL—There is public outcry against the new ruling that makes all Brazilian citizens potential organ donors unless they officially register their objection on their identification cards. Support for organ donation has dropped significantly although similar measures have been adopted in some European countries.

DENMARK, PARIS—Biologists have found a means of slowing aging in the cells by preventing the gradual fraying of the ends of DNA called telomere shortening. "These cells have an indefinite life span as far as you can tell," stated Dr. Calvin Harley, co-author of the discovery.
Just yesterday a colleague came to the Dean’s Office and gave me a copy of an article in the “Stanford Daily On Line” of Jan 9, published under the unfortunat e I believe it to be anonym, but then, who cares? I thought you might enjoy this as I did”, my colleague told me. I looked at the download. It began with the proclamation “Don’t let academics stand in the way of your education”. Supposedly that was said by one of Stanford’s Stanford Professors. I did not get further. Actually I did, but that is a story for another time. It seemed indeed a nice, pithy and clever saying, worthy quoting if it had been original. Unfortunately, I believe it to have been pure and simple plagiarism, may be a misremembered quote, but a paraphrase of a saying by Mark Twain, who obviously is not re-

Schooling, the word used by Twain, suggests to me the learning experience, the facts that are presented to the pupil for her to assimilate. That is much more interesting than academics, which implies not so much the things that one is learning, as the ways in which these facts are presented, the mechanics of teaching, the details of whether the class is taught by Prof. or TAs, at 8 a.m. or 10 p.m., are one or three times a week. Without these are facts, this material would be burned-

It is scary to think how little time there is for personal experiences, take you in a wider arena, the world outside of Tech. A pretty tight schedule, but that is all the time you have.

The House may provide you with a similarly minded cohort, a warm and fuzzy den, but precisely because of that you need to find other points of view in order to understand the world better.

So here we are. Like Mark Twain, do not let schooling, or Hoving, or, for that matter anything else, interfere with your education. They are all necessary. Study, yes, groove with your classmates, yes, but also go and experience the world outside the confines of Tech, your House, your family, your roots and discover other people’s roots and the basis for their world perspective. And so be it, or on second thought, maybe I should talk to some other people for a change? For my own education, you know.

Present (at some point): BoD (minus Alex), Nic Breem, Amy Zheng, Ben Wu, Mic Watson, Stephen Shepherd, Wren Montgomery, Ryan McCorvie, Hall Daily, Adrianne Hydahl, Barry Shapiro, Dave Goulet, Erik Steele, Judy Green

Meeting called to order at 22:08.
(This week Mike W. = Cartman and Mike A. = Kenny.)

General Business
Tent—Stephen is going to consolidate the 96-97 and 97-98 publications. Some highlights of the 96-97 book may appear in the Big T or the Technic. He is also confident that the publication date for the ’98 Totem can be moved up one week. Dr. Daily will inform the BoD if that is approved.

Big T—Thanks to some marathon work by Wren Montgomery, the 96-97 book may be a significant amount of work on the Big T and managed the conversion to digital publishing. He also feels that Wren (and her teammates) should also get some cash out of the Big T’s funds for their contribution. Ben Wu has formally resigned as editor of the 97-98 book. He recommends that Wren receive the same compensation as himself (and then some) for her work on the 96-97 book. Dr. Daily informs the BoD that despite publishing and computing related problems, the Big T is in sound financial shape going to the 97-98 season. Dr. Daily wants to get BoD approval to go to a two signature system for Big T expenses. Ben Wu recommends that future Big T’s may not want to rely entirely on digital publishing techniques. Wren sees no reason why the entire book shouldn’t be desktop published. In the future, Dr. Daily is going to require meetings with the Big T and himself as it is a for credit class (PA 15).

Meeting closes at 22:50. Meeting opens sometime later.

The BoD decides to allocate $800 of Big T funds for compensation of those persons who finished the 96-97 book (specifically Wren Montgomery). That money is not to be distributed until the BoD sees a printout of the completed Big T.

SAVE—Ruddock bought some snow chains for the Student Affairs Van. Kiran thinks that SA will agree to buy them for use by the community.

Alumni—The Alumni Relations Committee of the Board of Trustees is looking for three student members. Kohl wants to appoint a senior, a junior, and a sophomore to these positions. Members of the committee would be involved in long-term projects to facilitate alumni/faculty/student interaction. Mail Kohl (kohl@eco) if you are interested.

Committees—Kohl wants to consider a bylaw change that would list specifically what appointments are made by the IHC and which are made by the BoD and require periodic reviews of the actions of those committees.

Brennen—Kohl met with the new VP for Student Affairs Chris Bremere and the IHC. Brennen was interested in hearing about concerns of students. The BoD needs to have topics prepared for our upcoming meeting with Dr. Brennen on the 22nd.

Officer Reports
Peggy—Needs to fill some positions.

Kirnan—We need a five digit account number so that the copier will be able to interface with the campus card network. There is some discussion on the mysterious difference between 6 and 5 digit accounts. John will get us a new account from the bursar’s office. We have a speaker and funding for the ASCIT Campas retreat. The trade in value of the old van is around $300. Sharon Slavyn (of Student Affairs) is going to get back to us on how much she can pitch in for a new ASCIT vehicle. Looking into getting an ASCIT fax machine and typewriter. By the way, that wire drop is done.

Adrienne—ASCIT can get some decent prizes and party lights for around $1270. A used fog machine will run us about $430.

The BoD votes 4-2-0 (with Baldeep and Kirnan going even) to allocate $1400 from the budget surplus for lights. The new URL of the web social calendar has changed to http://www.eco.caltech.edu/social.

Cartman—Blah guide. Blah CLUE.

Daily—Turned in all of our financial stuff to the bookkeeper. Currently doing the books on the Big T. It looks like we are on track for filing taxes in the next year. John officially recommends that we continue to pay a bookkeeper and that we maintain our relationship with the current one. Looked into how the Y does it financially. They have a staff position that does the books.

Kenny—Nominations for Big T editors will open soon and close before the next meeting. The budget survey will also be out in the next few days. Working on the annual report. Thinks that a foosball table would be a perfect use of the $1000 that ASCIT has allocated for coffeehouse improvements. E-mail Kenny (artie@eco) if you have any other bright ideas. The money for Student Affairs’ half of the new computer should arrive soon. Redoing the image of the ASCIT structure for the web page.

Kohl—Is working on that ESC thing. Wants an ASCIT jacket.

Meeting adjourned at 05:57.
Respectfully submitted,
Michael D. Astle

FROM THE SCURVE WEEKLY DIGEST

In a surprise move, the bomber suspect Theodore Kaczynski has hired L.D. Ricketts & Associates as his new legal defense team. Reasons cited to Judge Garland Burrell included the team's extensive experience with nonlethal explosives. "Nobody else can offer this sort of extensive familiarity with burning and exploding things, from acetone to dried sheep's urine to plain old freshmen," remarked latter-day Machiavelli Tom Barnion. The crazed former mathematician has had a notoriously difficult time finding lawyers that he can communicate effectively with. Legal experts say that this is to be expected: "Lawyers tend to be either pedantic, hair-splitting bores or dissolve children of rich families who spend all their free time snorting coke," says lawyer Sandra Looper. "Nothing at all like the alienated, sexually awkward, perpetually insecure types who excel in science and math, desperately hoping to find something in this world that they can finally believe in."

Some see other motives for the move. Kaczynski has famously rejected any insanity claim on the part of his lawyers. Some see Kaczynski's plan to surround himself with the members of the Ricketts team as a way to appear conspicuously sane and normal. "Those scurves are weird" said analyst Kim East. "I don't understand them at all." Jean-Luc Revel, another long-time observer of insane behavior, commented "Those kids, they have rocks in their heads."

The Rudds Shall Burn in Eternal Hell for Their Vile, Lascivious Ways (or, "God Sez: Rudds Suck!")

Hark! What is it I hear? I hear a grave and perverse new evil begatting across the land and devouring every virtuous soul which is not consistently vigilant and alert! Oh, mercy and pity on those who fall within these festering shenanigans. But there is no mercy, there is no pity, for your forgiving and loving God (that's me)! Feels none of these emotions for the sinners who dare go against His will. The very heart and soul of Satan Herself manifest themselves in the members and actions of this vile osculatory cult, this Ruddock House.

Oh, poor poor mortal, do not be deceived by these incestuous festooned she-male succubi of SATAN Herself. According to my holy Scriptures, Nazis are Rudds, and Nazis engage in the most unholy debauchery and drunkenness. "Nazis... were whiter than milk, they were more RUGGED in body than rubies" (Lamentations 4:7). However, these Nazis have a weakness for the very concilied golden discharges of Satan, the abominable wickedness brew itself: "But ye gave the Nazites wine to drink." (Cooker 2:12). My very heart palpitates at the thought of it.

Furthermore, the Rudds are lame, yes, I decree so! (Quote: "he fell, and became lame. And his name was Mephibosheth, and he begat Jekamiah, Nimrod, Uzza, Cushi, and Booz, who begat the Rudds") (2 Chronicles 4:4). Hie, do not stand for such lunelessness! We and all the virtuous enlightened beings of God's earth except for the heathen Presbyterian who practice lustful self-gratification in their Synagogues and the perverse pagan residents of Canada and Texas with their time-share sexual partners and penis pumps, we all will be saved while the Rudds and buffoonery will be eternally tormented in fire and shit. Always follow my path; never stray from My glorious and inscrutable Word! Kill a Rudd for Jesus, praise God, Amen.

Kneeling back down either side of the couch, he began licking him at the same time. He moaned loudly and put his hands on both our heads pushing his pelvis up at us. Tonguing him up and down he got harder and his veins were pulsing. Finally I put his head in my mouth and Kathy went down and sucked his balls into her mouth. That was all the more to hold onto to keep the load. We had gotten him so hot that once his cock and balls were completely imbedded in our mouths he groaned, arching his back and hard. I grabbed Kathy's chest as my breath was drenched in his hand in under where the queen had pointed his cock when it came.

"Take his hands you sluts and use his fingers to fuck yourselves, teach him how to touch you, let me see it, now," she ordered us. We were still holding his arms over his head at the wrists like she had told us earlier. So we moved his hands between our legs and at once he began fingering us again. His thumb was pressing my clitoris and two fingers were sliding up my wet hole. I began bouncing up and down on his fingers as they slid deeper into me. Kathy was doing the same to her Beaver and the queen was slapping away at his ass and stroking his cock. "Cum you sluts" she demanded. Oh, I didn't want to just because I was being given orders but I could not hold back.

On a separate note, the United Methodist Church commended Nike's progress on fair labor practices during a shareholder's meeting.

The constant pushing and rubbing lead me over the edge and I drenched his hand in my juices. Hearing my ecstasy Kathy began her panting and released herself too. "That's right my dears, just cum all over yourself" she was laughing, "make a big wet mess of this place, cum and cum..." We noticed that Lance had shot a huge load of his own all over the pillows under where the queen had pointed his cock when it came.

Trash, an exhibition of work that takes debris — mental or material or both — as a place from which to start and plays with ideas of relative value, the work functions as a series of moving targets that skitter between illegibility and recognition, authenticity and mockery, critique and complicity, high art and recontextualized kitsch. "Well, that ought to teach you a lesson in playing with sluts" she said as she rose to her feet. Clapping her hands to call her attendant she reached out with the ball of her foot and shoved Lance's ass into the ground. I immediately began apologizing to him but he stopped me. "She's just jealous because you look like her" he explained. He told us she was his old girlfriend but they had been broken up for three years and she follows him around everywhere trying to screw things up. He said he went with me because he noticed how much I looked like her. The next day we talked to someone who knew of Lance and his ex and they told us that they were two totally kinky couple who liked to do all sorts of bizarre things Kathy and I have always wondered if they planned that afternoon with us? What do you think?
